The first sandwich, so called, was made of two large slabs of bread with a slice of ham between, and was devoured by the fourth earl of Sandwich, who was born 195 years ago, on November 3, 1718. This earl, like most of the English nobles of that time, was devoted to games of chance, and it was this predilection that was responsible for the application of his name to the sandwich. When the stakes ran high the belted earl was unable to tear himself away from the gaming table, and it was his custom to order servants to bring him slices of bread and ham. Other devotees of the goddess of luck followed his example, and gave the name of "sandwich" to the combination of bread and meat. The passion for gambling is no longer so prevalent as in the earl of Sandwich's day, but the rush and hurry of modern life have given the sandwich a wide popularity, who would "get filled quick" at the expense of digestion and health. The noble who invented the sandwich was long first lord of the admiralty and held other high positions in the English government.

A few years of school dental clinics have made "toothbrush drills" s familiar idea in many cities. It took the Toronto public nurses, or rather their supervisor, Lina L. Rogers, to originate another drill quite as unique and important, says the Survey. Since last October the school children of Toronto, in squads of 20, have practiced daily "nose blowing drills" and the effect on the freshness of the at mosphere of the schoolsrooms has been so noticeable that the teachers have become assiduous in seeing to it that no child comes to school unprovided with a pocket handkerchief They often, indeed, themselves order the drills without waiting for the coming of the nurse. The effect of the drill is perceptible already on individual children, in cases of catarrh, and the doctors predict that it will have an appreciable effect in time in lessening adenoids and other throat and nose affections.

The discovery is said to have been made that milk kept in red bottles will remain sweet and pure longer than when kept in plain glass or oth er colored bottles. Experiments have been made with the spectrum to determine which of the rays of light affect milk and it has been found that it is the rays toward the violet end of the spectrum that do the mischief. The red ray is stronger and more penetrating and probably has some neutralizing effect upon the lacteal microbe. If experiments confirm the theory that the red bottle preserves the milk better than the bottle now in use, the red bottle should be adopted generally. Such a change will create a new set of milk bottle millionaires.

An individual shaving cup for each shave or shaver is the latest sanitary barber shop innovation, for which a patent has been obtained by a Vermont man. The cup is made of paraffin paper with a thin layer of soap, sufficient for a single shave, coating the bottom. When this has been used it is intended that it should be thrown away. This greatly reduces the chances of any exchange of disease germs taking place through the medium of the barber's chair.

The success of the war against aigrettes has stimulated the movement to save the bird life of the land. The Audubon society has done yeoman's service in making the country realize the importance of this life in the conseravtion of our national resources and the suicidal folly of allowing so great a factor in forest conservation to be endangered for mere fashion's sake.

An esteemed citizen of the east sues for divorce because his better half refused to put camphor balls in his best suit of clothing. His remedy is plainly to furnish the camphor balls himself, put the suit away, and then deal firmly with the lady when she wants money for her outfit.

The description given in the Journal last week of the gifts received by the Santa Clans Club of our town, leads one to believe that many good people in their comfortable nests pray somewhat as the little girl did whose mother overheard her at her prayers one evening as Christmas was approaching. She said, "I saw a poor little girl on the street today whose dress was very thin and whose shoes were very ragged, and who looked awful cold and hungry. I expect God, that the poor little thing will not have any Christmas. But then that is none of my business or yours either, is it God?"
